

«Snowflake»

(Eng) Translated by Makarenko Catherine

A drop of water froze and then
Became a snowflake.
And from an undiscrivable height
Fell on my footsteps.

* * *

It melted and came back again
To sources.
It hoped that all the other drops
Which courses

* * *

Through streams and rivers to the
Seas and oceans
Will never be in loneliness
In their motion.

* * *

On visiting the skies
It hoped to sing
In merry loud streams
In early spring.

* * *

It hoped to smooth
The fire of the sun
And as a snowflake fall into
The palm,

* * *

The fair girl's palm, which
I saw in my sweet dreams.
Her eyes were clear, tender and were yours,
It seems.